COLLEGE REPORT May 1972/Volume 25, Number 5

HAVE A HAPPY VACATION!

"AND HE DIED"

The last frontiers have been reached. There is no escape from the necessity of solving the problems of society if it is to survive," President Harold H. Hutson told members of the 1972 graduating class at the annual baccalaureate service in the Pine Street United Methodist Church on May 7th. Using the theme "And He Died", Dr. Hutson traced changing concepts and philosophies of life from the simplifications of Biblical times, through the frontier days in America, to the complexities of the present.

One of the major reasons cited by Dr. Hutson for present-day frustrations and problems is the lack of a frontier to which we can escape. "In human societies frontier concepts often determine how people live and die. The frontier provided an outlet, an escape for those who found their own problems, and those of society closing in on them. When that happened, they could always move on. Nobody felt permanently hemmed in. He could always move on, whether the effects of social living became too oppressive

"Then we ran out of space in the West. The physical frontier was gone. We were thrown back upon physical resources that had definite spatial limits. Our mental and emotional resources also close in on us, and we begin to learn the meaning of the frustration which ensues when there is seemingly no physical or emotional outlet. Then what do we do? The frontier is gone. So what does this mean to me?"

Quoting from a recent newspaper column by David S. Broder, in which Broder declared that the American voters thus far, in the primaries, sent a message of cynicism and alienation, Dr. Hutson said Broder believes "the public mind is not the traditional American spirit of optimism and self-confidence, but one of anxiety, tension, and frustration. Beseated by a seemingly endless war, by inflation by drugs, by crime, many have lost confidence in their country, if not in themselves."

THE DURANT L. FUREY III MEMORIAL AWARD in accounting was established in May through cash contributions from Huskin and Sells, a Philadelphia based accounting firm, and friends of the late Mr. Furey. Interest from the fund will be awarded annually to the graduating senior at Lyscoming who has done outstanding work in accounting. The late Mr. Furey was a 1963 Lyscoming graduate and an employee of Huskin and Sells when he lost his life in an automobile accident last September. The first recipient of the annual award was William A. Stotler, of Jeannette, who is shown here with F. Lancelotti Marx, personnel administrator of Huskin and Sells, holding the plaque on which each recipient's name will be inscribed. Also shown in the photo are President Hutson (extreme left), Mr. Furey's widow, of Philadelphia, and Joseph P. Henley, a partner in the Philadelphia firm.

Dr. Hutson also quoted Haynes Johnson who wrote "Americans may still believe in themselves, but they have lost faith in most everything else. They do not believe in their politicians. They do not believe in their press. They do not, indeed, seem to believe in any institution."

"If Broder and Johnson are right," Dr. Hutson told the seniors, "I disagree strongly on one point. If we have lost faith in our people and our institutions, we have projected our loss of confidence in ourselves onto these officers and these institutions we have created. This is the passing of the frontier. This is the death wish 'And He Died' may well be our own epitaph and that of our society. The new American immorality may be seen in the critic who has no

1972 COMES THROUGH

Seniors again conducted a pledging program with their class under the direction of Linda Burton. A total of ninety-nine seniors signed five-year pledges which will amount to a gift of $4,125.00 to the College over the next five years. Others of the class expressed the desire to pledge as soon as their employment plans are firm. The Alumni Association congratulates the Class of 1972 on their loyalty to their Alma Mater.

CHALLENGE CONTINUED

An issue of THE GREAT STBEAM is headed your way. It will be the first appeal to the 1972 Lyscoming College Fund. All alumni are reminded that the Trustee Challenge is in effect for the 1972 Fund. All unrestricted gifts given by alumni count toward The Challenge.

The amount alumni gave in 1971 cost our Trustees $7,150.00. We hope to collect $15,000 from them in 1972. Your help is needed now! Respond quickly when your envelope arrives.

solution, the absolutist who turns his back on reality and suggests no steps toward his goal."

In conclusion, Dr. Hutson told the seniors they "have not been given easy and simple answers. Perhaps there aren't any. The frontiers are gone, the problems cannot be solved by moving—west, east, north, or south. The search for solutions must go on, through you, or else they shall wait upon the graves of all of us. 'And He Died.'"

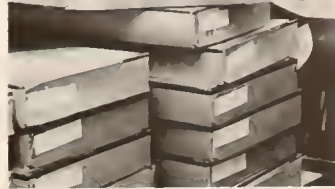

Also participating in the annual service were Dr. Thomas J. Hopkins, pastor of the host church, Dr. James R. Jose, dean of the college, and the college concert choir directed by Walter G. Melver, professor of voice.

THE ONE HUNDRED TWENTY-FOURTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT of Lyscoming College was held on the Flag Court Sunday, May 7th at 2:00 p.m. in Bachelor of Arts degrees were conferred on 273 seniors. Top honors went to Joann E. Shorn, of Mountsville, who was valedictorian and Edward G. Hook, of Williamsport, who was salutatorian.

COMMENCEMENT WAS A FAMILY AFFAIR (photo above) as far as President Hutson (right) was concerned. He conferred a degree upon his daughter-in-law Betty Reed Hutson, an elementary education major. His son, Mark William Hutson (center), participated in commencement exercises also. A psychology major, he will enter graduate school at American University in the fall. Betty and Mark have known one another since 10th grade when their families both resided in Bethesda, Maryland. Dr. Hutson was then present at American University. In the photo at right, Robert Loring Priest picks up his cap and gown from Deborah Evans in the Registrar's Office in preparation for graduation. A business administration major, Bob is the son of a Lyscoming College professor, Dr. Loring B. Priest.

FACULTY HONORED

Eight members of the faculty, including three who retired at the end of the academic year, were honored April 7th at the second annual Lycoming College Faculty Recognition Dinner in the Lycoming Hotel.

Retired after seventy-six combined years of service are Dr. Helen B. Weidman, professor of political science, Dr. W. Arthur Faus, associate professor of philosophy, and Don L. Larrabee, lecturer in law. Dr. Weidman has been on the staff twenty-eight years, Dr. Faus twenty-one years, and Mr. Larrabee, a part-time faculty member for twenty-seven years.

Dr. James R. Jose, dean of the college, introduced the retirees, and associates of the three faculty members summarized briefly their contributions to the college. Dr. Harold H. Hutson, president of the college, presented each with a gift.

Also recognized for outstanding achievement were five other faculty members. Dr. Frances E. Skeath, professor of mathematics and chairman of the department, and Robert H. Ewing, professor of history, were given gifts by Dr. Hutson on behalf of the college in honor of twenty-five years of service to Lycoming. Colleagues also summarized their contributions to the school.

DR. FRANCES E. SKEATH, professor of mathematics and chairman of the department, accepts a token of the College's appreciation from President Hutson for her twenty-five years of outstanding service.

Three faculty members were recognized for having attained their doctorates during the year: Dr. Forrest E. Keesbury, assistant professor of education; Dr. Emily R. Jensen, assistant professor of English; and Dr. Delores K. Kennedy, assistant professor of psychology. Dr. Jose congratulated the recipients and Mrs. Keesbury and Mr. Kennedy were recognized.

MR. AND MRS. DON L. LARRABEE listen to John Hollenback read what went on in Don's Legal Principles classes for twenty-seven years.

ROBERT H. EWING, professor of history, is thanked by Dr. Hutson for his twenty-five years of excellent teaching and dedicated service as Jim Shaffer, his biographer, looks on.

for giving "moral support" to their spouses during the time they were working on their advanced degrees.

Dr. Weidman, a member of the staff at Lycoming since 1944 and a native of Williamsport, was chairman of the political science department. She is a graduate of Bucknell University, where she received her bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees, and Syracuse University, where she earned her doctor of philosophy degree.

Dr. Faus, on the staff since 1951, is a native of Junesville, Pennsylvania. He is a graduate of Dickinson College with a bachelor of arts degree in theology. He was awarded the bachelor of sacred theology from Boston University School of Theology and the doctor of philosophy degree from Boston University. He is an ordained minister and before entering the teaching profession held pastorates at a number of churches in Pennsylvania, including the Third Street United Methodist Church in Williamsport from 1938-43. He was on the staff at The Pennsylvania State University before joining the Lycoming faculty.

Mr. Larrabee, a practicing attorney in the city, received a bachelor of arts degree from Allegheny College and his law degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

DR. AND MRS. W. ARTHUR FAUS, at right, look on as Owen F. Herring, a colleague in the philosophy department, tells some facts of Arthur's past. Dean Jose is in the background.

HONORS

VIRGINIA A. SAMUEL, of Forty-Eight, is applauded as the 1972 Chieftain. Lycoming's most coveted honor is awarded to the senior who, in the opinion of the students and faculty, has contributed the most to the College through support of school activities, has exhibited outstanding constructive leadership qualities, has worked effectively and effectively with the members of the college community, has evidenced a good moral code, and whose a scholastic rank is in the upper half of the senior class.

VINCENT C. JOY, of Harrisburg, is the first recipient of the Sol Woody Wolf Award. The new award recognizes the participant in an authorized N.C.A.A. sport who has shown the most improvement in inter-collegiate competition during his first three college years.

CAMPUS NOTES

THE ASSOCIATES OF LYCOMING COLLEGE—a group of professional, business, and industrial leaders—held their spring dinner meeting in the college dining room May 18th with approximately seventy members and guests in attendance. President Hutson moderated a panel discussion on "Problems of Higher Education". Jack C. Buckle, dean of student services; John P. Graham, professor of English, and Oliver E. Harris, director of development, completed the panel. Dean Buckle discussed student life and changing attitudes, Professor Graham compared past and present teaching and learning techniques, and Mr. Harris explained fund-raising and financial problems of private colleges.

VISTULA CHAPMAN '72, a History/German major, received a Ford Foundation Doctoral Fellowship, one of sixteen in the nation awarded to history and social studies majors. She plans to work in American and Black Studies.

A CHINA COLLOQUIUM was conducted April 6th and 7th under the joint sponsorship of Lycoming and the Williamsport Public Forum. Four visiting speakers discussed various aspects of modern China.

Bruce Morgan, professor and department of religion chairman at Amherst College, resided in China during the hectic years between the end of the second World War and the conclusion of the Communist revolution. He spoke on "Sociological Changes in the People's Republic of China: From Confucian Particularism to Communist Nationhood" and on the "Chinese View of the World: Old and New—How Discontinuous?"

Daniel Tretiak and Lois Dougan Tretiak were with the last group of Americans to speak with Chou-En-lai before President Nixon's trip to China. Both of them speak Chinese. They returned from the month-long visit on February 12th.

Mr. Tretiak, a lecturer in political science at York University in Toronto, is a Ph.D. candidate in political science at Stanford University. He is Co-Chairman of the U. S. Committee for a New China Policy and was formerly senior political scientist with the Advanced Studies Group, Westinghouse Corporation. At various sessions he spoke on "U. S.-China Foreign Relations", "Women's Role in the Chinese Society", and "Observations on Contemporary Chinese Higher Education". Professor Tretiak has been to mainland China several times.

Mrs. Tretiak is a free-lance writer for Harvard East Asia Legal Studies and the Harvard East Asian Research Center. She is a University of Pittsburgh graduate and former assistant editor of the Far Eastern Economic Review, published in Hong Kong. She spoke on "Politics in Contemporary China: Projections into the Future" and was commentator on the other colloquium presentations.

Professor B. Michael Frolic is a research fellow at the Harvard Russian Research Center and a Ph.D. candidate at Cornell. He speaks Chinese, German, and Russian; has been an exchange student in Moscow, and spent a month in mainland China in both 1965 and 1971. He spoke on "Urban Problems of Modern China" and "U. S.-China Trade Prospects".

W. ARTHUR FAUS, retired professor of philosophy, will be listed in the forthcoming edition of Who's Who Among Authors and Journalists.

RICHARD W. FELDMANN, assistant professor of math, has been awarded a graduate assistantship in statistics at The Pennsylvania State University where he will continue his doctoral study full-time on sabbatical during the 1973 spring semester.

MORTON A. FINEMAN, professor of physics, is a visiting research engineer for the summer at the Institute for Pure and Applied Physical Sciences at the University of California—San Diego and is doing research on reactions of atmospherically important molecular and atomic species using a molecular beam apparatus designed by David Miller.

JOHN G. HOLLENBACK, associate professor of business administration, will be listed in the new edition of Who's Who In Advertising.

ELIZABETH H. KING, assistant professor of business administration, was the only "outsider" at a two-day seminar on current societal problems sponsored by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company at their Montoursville district office. Mrs. King was invited to the program normally restricted to employees to assist her in preparing a course for next year titled "Business in Society". GEORGE MITCHELL '70, a PP&L staff representative, co-moderated the seminar.

DONNA R. MILLER and SALLY F. VARGO, assistant professors of physical education, narrated a video-tape of a Williamsport junior/senior high school gymnastics meet for KATV, the local cable station.

LOGAN RICHMOND, associate professor of accounting, has been elected to membership in the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

ROGER D. SHIPLEY, assistant professor of art, received a $500 achievement award for his sculpture "Pictorial Participation Number 24" exhibited this spring at the Appalachian Corridors Exhibition 3 biennial show in Charleston, West Virginia. He had a Williamsport Arts Festival one-man sculpture show.
